The Conkling View of the Fight.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Conkling said to an intimate friend during the day: "I feel very sanguine as to the result of my fight. I was never more hopeful. I shall return to Albany the moment my friends think my presence necessary and remain there [illegible] the struggle." One of the stalwarts who has been managing the contest for Conkling in Albany, who ought to know everything which bears upon the contest, said to a Times reporter: "All the money in New York will not defeat Conkling. I know of three half-breeds who are willing to go over to him when their votes will elect him, and we have only to secure six more votes to make our success sure. I believe that we will secure those six votes during the coming week, and if we do you will see a stampede for Conkling which will astonish you. If we don't get them the stalwarts will stand firm and there will be an adjournment without election. Gov. Cornell will then call a special session of the legislature just before the election next fall, and then, if the half-breeds dare risk the success of the republican party at the polls by carrying this question before the people and continuing the fight to the popular election, on them will rest the blame of turning the republican state of New York over to the democrats. Reckless as they are, I don't believe they are ready to accept such a responsibility as this."

Platt's Views.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Ex-Senator Platt said this evening that he and Conkling had talked over the situation with their friends. He gave it as his opinion that there would be a long deadlock in the senate which would only be terminated by adjournment. Vice-President Arthur arrived tonight. State Treasurer Wendell, Postmaster Craig, Attorney General Ward and ex-Superintendent of Insurance Smith, also came to the city, and are guests of ex-Collector Murphy. Late in the evening ex-senators Conkling and Platt left their hotel, and it was said went to Vice-President Arthur's house.

A Scheme of the Dems.

The Times' Albany says: Administration men are confident that some sort of a compact has been agreed upon between Conkling's friends and democrats by which the election of two republican senators is to be postponed if it can't be defeated. It is certain that an attempt is to be made to reconvene the democrats in caucus, and the main object is to find democrats to vote at the first opportunity for a motion to adjourn sine die.

Schurz on Conkling.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Carl Schurz [illegible] the [illegible] Conkling [illegible] He has [illegible] expressed [illegible] with a considerable number of [illegible] that number has of late been rapidly increasing. Conkling at the beginning of the last administration, lost personal intercourse with very few of its members and towards its close [illegible] and now he has broken with the president and several members of the cabinet, and would [illegible] to the senate, probably not be on terms of pleasant intercourse with any. That under such circumstances the usefulness of a senator is seriously impaired, it needs not to be shown by argument. Conkling seems to be haunted by the idea that everybody wants to "insult" and "humiliate" him, and this fancy seems to have seriously affected his mind. "Insult" and "humiliation" he can never forgive, and thus he [illegible] all the senators who [illegible] Robertson [illegible] they almost unanimously [illegible] would have thrown off personal intercourse with very nearly the whole body.

An Interesting Yarn.

CHICAGO, June 5.—A Tribune special from New York has a story that when Conkling and Platt were [illegible] their resignation they sent a special messenger to Gov. Cornell with instructions to find whether they were sure of reelection. The information was given that Conkling had sent a messenger to attend to important business, and he was taken into port by Conkling's friends in New York and spent Sunday in conviviality and [illegible] missed the train for Albany that night. Conkling not hearing anything from him next day concluded that all was right, and went ahead with his resignations. It was not until the day the messenger returned that he learned his terrible mistake.

Boston Wants a Big Fair.

BOSTON, June 5.—A meeting of the produce exchange was held today to consider a project for a world's fair in this city. Speeches were made by a large number of members favoring it, and a resolution was unanimously adopted that merchants heartily favor holding a world's fair in Boston in 1885, and we are ready to extend substantial aid to the enterprise. A committee of six was appointed to act with others already appointed.

Suicide.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 5.—Gabriel George, aged 70, residing at Gilman's in this county, shot his head off today. Domestic trouble and whisky the cause.

Turners' National Festival.

ST. LOUIS, June 5.—Turners to attend the national festival which opens here tonight have been arriving from all directions this morning and in great numbers.

The President and party at Fortress Monroe.

FORTRESS MONROE, June 5.—The steamer Dispatch with President Garfield, Secretary Hunt, Admiral Porter and others arrived here this morning. They came ashore to a hotel where they dined. There they were met by General Getty and staff. A reception was then held.

A Shameful Outrage.

CANTON, O., June 5.—Great indignation was aroused today upon finding a vault in the cemetery broken open that had not been opened for twenty-five years, and bones of corpses strewn all around. The supposed object of the desecration was to get jewelry from dead bodies.

Fire near Bangor.

BANGOR, Me., June 5.—W. T. Pearson & Co's sawmill at Great Works, eleven miles north of this city, burned this morning with sheds—blacksmith shop and [illegible] feet of lumber; loss over $60,000, insured for $[illegible]. One hundred and sixty men out of employment.

Fire at Vicksburg.

VICKSBURG, June 5.—A fire this afternoon destroyed Spiegler's large steam planing mill on [illegible] street, with valuable machinery, lumber and ornamental woodwork. Several small houses in the neighborhood were burned and several badly damaged. Spiegler's loss, $50,000; insured for $10,000.

The Hartwell Case.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 5.—A special from Society Hill, this state, says that John H. Hartwell, aged 11 years, son of the Rev. Dr. J. B. Hartwell, southern baptist missionary to the Chinese in San Francisco, arrived here on the 2d inst., and went to his aunt, Mrs. Ellen C. Edwards' residence. He says that he was living with his father on Washington street, San Francisco, and that on May 2d, while on his way to the Eddy Street Baptist church, he was kidnapped by a man, a stranger to him, taken to Oakland and thence on an emigrant train to New York, arriving in that city on the 30th ult. at 6 P.M. There he was put into an unoccupied house where he was detained until the following day, when some money was given to him and he was told to go. He came south on a through ticket to Greenville, S. C. He seems to be an exceedingly bright boy and tells many things about his abductor that appear incredible. He says he prefers to live in Society Hill.

A Singular Thieving Enterprise.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A case, to which much importance is attached, was brought to a successful issue tonight by detectives. For years the brewers of this city have suffered serious losses by having their barrels stolen in large numbers. They have spent thousands of dollars in a vain endeavor to discover the thieves. An extensive traffic in stolen kegs and barrels has long been carried on in this city notwithstanding the law making it penal offense to sell or buy beer barrels upon which the owner's name is stamped. Two weeks ago the brewers appealed to the police for protection. Today a driver and two men while carting away a cart load of barrels upon which the owner's stamp had been destroyed were arrested. They were to be shipped to other cities. The driver betrayed the name of his employer, who was arrested [illegible] and [illegible] stolen kegs and 12 barrels taken to the police headquarters. Fifteen prisoners [illegible] West [illegible] street. He has been in business twenty years and has grown rich on it. The extent of losses caused by the robbery can be inferred from the fact that a single business firm of brewers lost in one year 770 barrels, worth from $8 to $11 each.

Boys Killed.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Three boys, Daniel Frazer, [illegible] Bonnie, same age, and [illegible] were buried under a falling [illegible] at No. [illegible] East Broadway tonight, and [illegible] dead. Workmen were excavating [illegible] [illegible] that the [illegible]

LONDON, June 5.—O'Mahoney finally informed the police that if they would withdraw he would go without an escort to Limerick jail. He walked from Ballydehob to Skibbereen accompanied by [illegible] people, where he took the train to Cork and proceeded to Limerick. The warrant charges [illegible] incitement to murder.

Guilty.

[illegible], June 5.—The jury in the [illegible] case found Doyle guilty. The verdict was sealed.

Another Account.

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—The Blade this afternoon publishes an account by Gen. R. P. Buckland of the opening of the battle of Shiloh and the part taken [illegible] by his brigade, which was one of the first at-

[illegible] and [illegible] Tyner [illegible] The [illegible] of the Blade, and [illegible] there was no surprise, [illegible] and [illegible]

Trouble in Colorado.

DENVER, June 5.—Gov. Pitkin today received a telegram from the sheriff of Conejos county saying that the county is powerless against an [illegible] desperado, [illegible] Allison, a leader [illegible] Arboles and Conejos. We have good men [illegible] On receipt of the above [illegible] offered a reward of one thousand dollars [illegible] of Allison, and two hundred each for [illegible] remainder of the gang, and also [illegible] to Alamosa.

The Pool.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Commissioner Fink was [illegible] [illegible] Jewett, of the Erie road [illegible] Erie and Central cut rates as [illegible] President Jewett said that it is not true that Erie elevators are full and those of the Central comparatively empty. I have not received notification from Vanderbilt that henceforth roads under his control would [illegible] for business regardless of the pooling arrangement, nor do I expect such notification. The Erie has strictly adhered to arrangements.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Tyner's Place.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—It is not true that ex-senator Spencer has been appointed first assistant Postmaster General. Tyner's friends say that his voluntary resignation has not yet been accepted. If Tyner retires, probably some other Indianian will succeed him, not ex-senator Conover as has been suggested.

That Lie on Blaine again Exploded.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Representatives of the attorney general and postmaster general, now and heretofore in charge of the star contracts investigation, emphatically discredit the public rumors that Secretary Blaine is being implicated in the matters referred to, and that in the interest of himself or implicated friends he endeavored to stay or impede the investigation. The committee of investigation and the superior officers of the department unite in denouncing all such reports as utterly groundless, and say that on the contrary Secretary Blaine from the very first encouraged the investigation most heartily, and has constantly taken the ground that it should be prosecuted to the uttermost.

Le Duc and his Sorghum Patch.

General Le Duc has made one [illegible] sort of valedictory interview in which he sets forth that sorghum, tea and silk industries will [illegible] many years save us in importation amounting to about [illegible] He reasons as follows: "I will probably go to California in the fall, but now I am more interested in the government's sorghum patch. The crop is growing finely. There are one hundred and thirty acres in cultivation, and it will be ready for harvest the latter part of August. The department has established the fact that sorghum sugar is a success. The only thing now is to make its production better and [illegible] more profitable. Why two times as much sorghum cane has been planted this year as last. The fourth crop from today will see the United States free from any dependence on foreign sugars. We have fifty million consumers in the country and each mouth demands annually 40 pounds of sugar."

Complete Success.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The comptroller of the currency reports that of 407 banks which held 5½ [illegible] per cent bonds, all had been extended at 3½ per cent, with the exception of two banks holding $[illegible]. One thousand three hundred and forty eight banks held $[illegible] of five per cents, all of which it is estimated have made application for extension, with exception of banks holding [illegible] to five million.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A number of heavy importers and [illegible] of New York and lawyers who have business in relation to [illegible] and duties are making an attempt to prevent removal of Second Assistant Treasurer French on the ground that he has a knowledge of customs laws, rules and regulations and the general [illegible] pertaining to customs matters. [illegible] French's place.

Officers in the treasury department were [illegible] government stamps [illegible] [illegible] of the bureau of engraving and printing. They [illegible] the bureau is doing [illegible] supplying stamps [illegible] notes, and the work in some cases has been badly executed. The accusations are said to be [illegible] [illegible] have protested against the poor [illegible] No charges have been made against the bureau or its management, but those [illegible] frequently made by treasury officials.

[illegible], special counsel to prosecute the star route ring, today went to [illegible] office and examined [illegible]

Attorney General MacVeagh [illegible] the postoffice department [illegible] and documents [illegible] the office of the third postmaster general.

The Star states, on what it considers to be reliably of an intimate friend of Secretary Windom, that a number of changes among prominent officials of the treasury department have been decided upon. These changes, it is said, include both the assistant secretaries, appointment clerk, and removal of [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the treasury [illegible] The treasury investigation would, it is said, have gone on with all predicted changes except that of Assistant Secretary French. His reappointment [illegible] would be on account of opposition to him by New York business men relative to [illegible] duties within the department.

Judge Noah says he is not an applicant for the chief clerkship of the pay division of the sixth auditor's office, nor would he accept it. Mr. Sherman has been recommended for promotion to the latter place.

The Division of the Spoils.

[New York Times.]

It is not true as is frequently asserted, that a quarrel in the democratic party over the distribution of offices, during the administration of Buchanan, broke up that organization. The cause of dissension was something deeper than the question of the division of party spoils. To be sure, Buchanan, as [illegible] the famous case of Gwin and Broderick, gave to the senior senator the official patronage of California, leaving Broderick out in the cold. But the seeds of discord had been earlier sown, when the proslavery policy of the administration had begun to estrange Broderick, Douglas, and the other leaders of what subsequently became the anti-Lecompton party, or popular sovereignty wing of the democracy. It is absurd to say that the democratic party was broken up by the quarrels of its leaders over the spoils of the enemy.

The next step in the demoralization of the public service was taken during the administration of Lincoln. In a time of extraordinary trial to the executive head of the government, it became necessary to win and keep, by personal influence and by the giving of personal favors, senators and representatives. Measures which Lincoln thought vital to the successful prosecution of the war and for the preservation of the Union were pressed upon congress by the administration. It should not have been necessary to importune congressmen to support these projects of law; but it was, and, what is more, it was sometimes found needful to reward the congressmen who reluctantly consented. If the truth were known, the reputation of some congressmen who are now reverenced as patriots would suffer an eclipse. Their patriotism was occasionally stimulated by gratitude for favors to come. Nobody knew better than Lincoln, the wise and shrewd old man, how many venal patriots were ready to run for him with their eyes fixed on their reward. So, while the harassed president, bowed down with care, was engaged in a work in which the end justified any means, there grew up the pernicious system the working of which has precipitated the unseemly quarrel now going on betwixt president and senator. Gradually it has become the practice of the government to hand over to senators and representatives the nomination of the officers whose appointment must first be ratified by the senate. Naturally, the senators, as part of the appointing power, take the lion's share of the patronage. The crumbs fall to the representatives in the lower house. The right of making nominations belongs to the president, but the senators enjoy the usufruct. It must be admitted that, in the present case, the president has weakened his position by tacitly acknowledging, as he has, the vitality of the doctrine now going out of date, that official patronage is a species of reward for service. This has made it more difficult for the baser sort of politicians to discern the real issue betwixt president and senate. Whatever is the result of the present struggle, it cannot fail to clarify the vision of the people. They see now, clearer than ever before, how absurd and mean politics can be made by a vicious administration of the civil service.

A Comedy in Two Parts.

Part I.—Senator Conkling Resigns.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise,
He jumped into a bramble bush
And scratched out both his eyes.

Part II.—He [illegible] to be Re-elected.

And when he found his eyes were [illegible]
With all his might and main
He jumped into a bramble bush
And scratched them in again.

We have told and the words of the poet [illegible] to take any liberties with the time-honored text. There seems to be need, however, of a revised [illegible] to give us a version which shall [illegible] [illegible] "scratched them in again," though he has been jumping over the [illegible] for the last [illegible] weeks.

MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1881

[illegible]

[illegible] of California, who [illegible] years in the Taylor street [illegible] recently gave a lecture on Admiral Farragut, with whom he was [illegible] while the admiral resided on [illegible] of the war. Mr. Anthony [illegible] and absurd the story that the admiral was lashed to the topmast of his ship while advancing to battle in Mobile Bay. The admiral himself denied the story and regarded it as intended to reflect upon his courage and common sense. He was most likely wrong in that, as the story was invented by some silly admirer—the same kind of a person that represented General Hancock as alternately riding and [illegible] his horse in front of his battle line at Gettysburg, while the enemy's bullets were pouring like hail. Per[illegible] [illegible] set down as war fictions which are not intrinsically improbable [illegible] they may not violate probability at all; and yet they may not be true. A writer in the Cincinnati Gazette shows that Gen. Taylor never spoke the famous words, "A little more grape, Captain Bragg!" and he attempts also to make it appear that the order said to have been given by Gen. Hancock at the battle of Williamsburg—"Now gentlemen, the bayonet," was the later invention of a person who wanted to tell a fine story. Now while it is probably true that those are not the very words used by Taylor or Hancock, it is not unlikely that in the first case an artillery officer was directed to load his guns with grape, or that in the second commanders of infantry battalions were commanded to order their men to fix bayonets to repel a charge or to make one. But the critic, in his iconoclastic zeal to break idols, and state the naked facts of history, says:

> In vain is it said that a general must have a voice like a steam whistle to be heard by a line of battle; in vain that in all the war no man was killed with bayonet; in vain have Bragg and Farragut pointed at the absurdity; tradition would rather give up battles than these decorative myths.

A general with a voice like a dozen steam whistles could not be heard by a line of battle composed of half a dozen regiments, at least during an engagement. But to connect the story that General Steedman's voice was heard at Chickamauga above the roar of musketry and artillery with the statement that "in all the war no man was killed with the bayonet," is to expose the military critic to ridicule. A great many men on both sides were killed and wounded with the bayonet during the war, as the records of the pension office and the war department abundantly show. Let us not go too far with idol breaking. There are war fictions innumerable, of course. Wellington expressly denied that he ever said at Waterloo, "Up Guards and at them!" Nor did Cambronne reply in the style of stilted tragedy, "The Guard dies; it never surrenders." These are the mock heroics of war. Men at such times are acting a part, not playing a part. The business is too serious for any study of attitudes or expressions. The judicious reader has little difficulty in distinguishing fact from fiction, or at least the probable from the improbable, in such cases.

ELECTRICITY.

None who closely watch the investigation so indefatigably pursued into the secrets of electricity can fail to note the revelations obtained almost daily as to the use of this agent as a force in mechanics, its capacity of serving as a light and the other wonderful properties or rather possibilities, it has. The long failure to subdivide the electrical current in a practical way for the uses of illumination gives an idea of the difficulties to be overcome in the single matter of the production of light from electricity which should fulfil the necessary conditions of cheapness and convenience. As a force, electricity has long evaded the efforts of the scientists even to make a practical beginning; but perhaps the electric railway may be the long sought primitive starting point from which improvements and developments may lead to unexpected results of a decided and useful kind. A recent announcement that a French scientist, M. Faure, bottled up a quantity of electricity in a jar and sent it from Paris to Glasgow is a development which no known properties of electricity would lead us to think possible. This jar had a capacity of one cubic foot, and it held and transmitted in undiminished power a quantity of electricity equal to one million foot pounds. Sir William Thompson, of Glasgow, received the jar and noted the condition of the contents. In the same line of investigation, Dr. Higgs, of New York, claims to have invented a method of storing electricity for lamps. He confines it in cells, convenient for use in houses, and says the cost of using electricity in this way is much less than in any other of the systems which provide for a central generator and distribution of the current by wires. By this system a person could order from the manufacturer as many jars of electric energy as he needed, from time to time. It is also claimed that street lamp posts can be filled with the jars of electricity needed to supply light for the night. The space of an ordinary walking-stick would hold enough electricity to furnish one light for an evening in-doors. All this and more is claimed for the new idea, for we believe no one ever thought of using this fluid in bulk before. But it so often happens that the claims of an inventor fail to be realized in actual practice that it would be premature to say that the lighting problem is solved by this method. At all events, it is safe to say that if the new idea is a success we shall hear plenty of it by-and-by; while if it is not, it may lead to good results indirectly, by showing that a solution is possible some other way.

A HINT FOR FRUIT GROWERS.

The Prairie Farmer states a fact well worthy of the attention of farmers and fruit growers—a fact well known to every observing farmer. The common black ant is the deadly enemy of all that class of insects which prey upon the flowers, foliage and fruit of apple, pear, peach, plum and cherry trees. The Farmer says: "Many of the leading orchard proprietors in Northern Italy and Southern Germany are cultivators of the common black ant, which insect they hold in high esteem as the fruit grower's best friend. They establish ant hills in their orchards, and leave the police service of their fruit trees entirely to the tiny colonists, which pass all their time in climbing up the stems of the fruit trees, cleansing the boughs and leaves of malefactors, mature as well as embryonic, and descending laden with spoils to the ground, where they comfortably consume or prudently store away their booty."

Every farmer and fruit grower knows that the black ant never meddles with or injures the bark, foliage or blossoms of trees, and never touches sound fruit, but only invades such apples, pears and plums as have already been penetrated by the canker, which they remorselessly pursue to its fastness within the very heart of the fruit. Nowhere are apple and pear trees so free from blight and destructive insects as in the immediate neighborhood of a large ant hill five or six years old. The favorite food of ants would appear to be the larvae and pupae of those creatures which spend the whole of their brief existence in devouring the tender shoots and juvenile leaves of fruit trees. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Chicago [illegible] [illegible] arrangement with the [illegible] [illegible] on which [illegible] will send [illegible] Sunday items on [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

St. Louis is going to a considerable extent into shipping grain by barges to New Orleans [illegible] bushels of wheat and corn [illegible] shipped on the 10th May, together with 5,000 barrels of flour and tons of miscellaneous freight. The Globe-Democrat is very exultant over the barge enterprise. It crows loudly, but it does not frighten Chicago many ways. The Journal of that city, noting the excitement of its Missouri contemporary, gives the figures for grain and flour shipped on the 13th, 16th, 17th and 18th May from Chicago, which throw St. Louis into the shade. On Saturday 14th there were shipped 16,000 barrels of flour, 200,000 bushels of wheat, 15,000 bushels of corn and 25,000 of oats; Monday 25,000 barrels of flour, 30,000 bushels of wheat, 214,000 of corn, 55,000 of oats; Tuesday, 15,000 barrels of flour, 223,000 bushels of wheat, 250,000 of shelled corn, 90,000 bushels of oats. Wednesday 200,000 bushels of wheat, 265,000 bushels of corn. The first grain fleet to leave Chicago this year for the lower lakes carried 1,500,000 bushels of corn, 1,218,000 bushels of wheat, 161,938 bushels of flax seed, 302,000 bushels of oats, and vessels are loaded and ready to sail with 1,500,000 more bushels of grain. And now says the Journal, let the St. Louis blowers ponder these stupendous figures and realize their ridiculous insignificance.

It is said that one-fortieth of the population of Sweden will emigrate to America during the present year. Already, in fact, transportation has been secured for that number of people, upward of 100,000. The Swedes are a hardy, industrious and frugal people, and make valuable citizens. They will nearly all settle in northwestern states and territories and engage in agricultural pursuits. The census returns show that there are 200,000 Swedes in the United States already, and Dr. Seth, the historian, estimates that the descendants of Swedes number 6,000,000 or more. They acquire the English language with greater facility than any other branch of the Teutonic race.

It is not alone the postmaster general and secretary of the treasury who propose to investigate and ascertain whether abuses have crept into the public service, and whether "reform is necessary." All the heads of departments at Washington are, it is said, pursuing that course. Rules and regulations which were good enough fifty, sixty or eighty years ago, when there were but comparatively few government employes, may be not only inapplicable, but vicious, as matters now stand. A strict inquiry into the methods long in vogue can do no harm, and may do "a power of good."

Every day the probability increases that the legislature of New York, at the present session, will not elect United States Senators. Another legislative assembly is to be chosen in November next, and with the quarrel in the republican party the chances are about ten to one that it will be democratic. The most probable consequence of the resignation of the New York senators is the election of democrats to succeed them. This would make the senate democratic beyond all hope of recovery by the republicans for four years, if not for a still longer period.

There is a [illegible] [illegible] in to-day's dispatches, that Mr. Conkling, in tendering his resignation, was the victim of the delinquency of an agent who was sent to Albany to ascertain if the [illegible] would be re-elected, but who got into a [illegible] and [illegible] missed the train and failed to report. Conkling, thinking [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] astonished to find that there was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and that the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

English railroad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] with astonishment. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] wilderness, and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. They have a notion [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that he might have [illegible] all the [illegible] of the [illegible]. They are [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] professed not to understand the game.

Jefferson Davis, by the advice of his friend, Judah P. Benjamin, who is now practicing law in London, will take up his residence temporarily in Canada, so as to be on British soil when his book, "The Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government," is published in London. That will enable him to secure a British copyright. The book will soon appear.

A [illegible] under the editorial management of Mr. Sam. L. Simpson, has become a journal of much literary value. Its editorial page is one of social news and general local features are well written and interesting. Yesterday's number contained a story by Mr. Simpson, "Miss Morton's Manuscript," a selected story, "A Ghost in a Garret," and a great variety of general selected matter, etc., A serial story, "Hidden Perils," the publication of which was suspended several weeks ago, was resumed, with a comprehensive synopsis of chapters.

NEEDLESS WASTE.—The Fourth of July committee have appropriated $300 for fireworks and $200 for advertising. This seems to be a very needless waste of money on advertising. It is not unlike the case in which the man was sent out with $20 to buy a lunch for a fishing party. Returning with $19.50 worth of whisky and 50 cents' worth of crackers, he was asked with surprise and indignation by one of the party what he had wasted so much money on crackers for. The committee would do well to recall that $200. It would pay for another dozen sky rockets.

DISAPPEARANCE OF W. W. FRANCIS.—It is claimed that the mystery surrounding the sudden, and for a time, unaccountable disappearance of W. W. Francis, of Halsey, has been solved. A letter was found in his trunk at home addressed to his wife, saying that she need not give herself any uneasiness on his account, as he had left the country for parts unknown. The discovery has subsequently been made that Francis went to a slaughter-house and procured a bottle of blood, which it is supposed he sprinkled over his coat and saddle as a blind to mislead.

REMOVED AND REST [illegible].—A correspondent of THE OREGONIAN, writing from Josephine county several months ago, gave an account of the condition of the grave of Philip Althouse, the discoverer of the famous placer mine which bears his name. [illegible] referring to the matter came under the observation of his brother, [illegible] Althouse, of Albany. With true brotherly feeling, he caused the remains to be exhumed [illegible] have been laid to their final rest in the beautiful cemetery near that place.

[illegible] Davey, a [illegible] year old [illegible] Mr. Thomas Davey, met with a [illegible] fall. The lad was [illegible] cherry tree [illegible] and had reached an altitude of about 15 feet [illegible] stepped on a weak branch which broke [illegible] and precipitated the boy to the ground. He struck [illegible] and shoulder, sustaining very serious injuries. At latest accounts the lad was resting as comfortably as his condition would allow.

[illegible].—After two days' fruitless search for the recovery of the body of James McKenney, who was drowned at the foot of Stark street [illegible] have been abandoned. The [illegible] of the river has been dragged carefully for some distance around where the [illegible] disappeared. Doubtless the body has drifted out into very deep water, where it will remain until, distended by gases, its buoyancy will cause it to rise to the surface.

[illegible].—A few days since The Dalles [illegible] the capture of an immense salmon by one of the fishermen employed for James and [illegible] near [illegible]. The salmon tipped the beam at 72 pounds. It was thought to be the largest salmon ever captured in the Columbia river. Now comes the Astorian of June 4th and says that a salmon was caught near the Eagle Cliff cannery on Friday weighing 72 pounds.

WILHOIT SPRINGS.—The hotel at the celebrated Wilhoit Springs on Rock creek, Clackamas county, will be ready for the reception of guests next Saturday. The new company have a store well filled with supplies for those who desire to camp out, at reasonable rates. Persons desiring information in regard to board, camping out, etc., should address A. F. Miller, superintendent, Molalla, Clackamas county.

THROUGH TO SPOKANE.—Mr. T. B. Harris, chief engineer of the Spokane division of the Northern Pacific railway, has arrived in the city. The road will be completed to Spokane Falls next week, and on Friday the locomotive will enter the town. The work has been pushed with vigor, two miles being frequently covered by track layers in a single day.

DEATH.—Yesterday, Robert Lee, for two years mate of the steamer Wide West, and for ten years mate of other river boats, died at St. Vincent's hospital after a week's illness of pneumonia. His funeral will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the hospital. Mr. Lee was well and favorably known among river men.

CLOSING EXERCISES.—The closing exercises of the Bishop Scott grammar school will take place this evening at 8:30. Bishop Morris will deliver an address and Dr. Hill, the head master, will read his third annual report. Friends of the school and the public are cordially invited to attend.

THE FIRE.—The fire occurring last Saturday morning was in an old unoccupied building situated at the corner of Mill and Third streets, and belonging to J. B. Mason. The loss is estimated at $200, on which there was no insurance. The building was doubtless set on fire.

CONFEDERATE ALMANAC.—Mr. E. S. Judd, who took an active part in the late civil war has in his possession an old Confederate almanac which in its way is quite a curiosity. The almanac was picked up on the 26th of April, 1862, at Camp Stephenson in Alabama.

SECRETARY RESIGNS.—Mr. T. B. Merry has tendered his resignation as secretary of the Northwestern District Agricultural Association. The resignation has been accepted and D. H. Murphy appointed secretary pro tem of the association.

ENTERTAINMENT.—This (Monday) evening an entertainment will be given at Neppach's Hall in East Portland. A very pleasant time is anticipated. The East Portland brass band will be in attendance.

BOOTHS FOR SALE.—By reference to the advertising columns it will be seen that booths on the State Fairgrounds will be rented at auction for the Fair of 1887, on Wednesday, June 8th, at 2 P. M.

[illegible].—From the Astorian it is ascertained that the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company will soon commence preparations for extended wharf improvements at that place.

INTERNATIONAL GOOD TEMPLARS.—Bethel Rose lodge meets at 8 o'clock this evening, corner Third and [illegible] streets.

FIREWORKS FOR THE FOURTH.

The committee in charge of the Fourth of July celebration have awarded to Prof. Geo. Hughes, the well known pyrotechnist, a contract for furnishing the fireworks to be burned on this occasion. Mr. Hughes has begun preparations for the display, which he promises to be the finest ever made in this city. There will be several sorts [illegible] of rockets, Roman candles, shooting stars, bombs, [illegible] wheels, serpents, and colored fires, [illegible] set pieces there will be no less than twenty-four, embracing the entire range known to pyrotechnic art. [illegible] A prominent piece is Bunker Hill Monument, 30 feet high, 6 feet [illegible] on a base [illegible] of two crosses, shields, cannons and balls, and surmounted by two flags. The grand [illegible] "Temple of Liberty," a piece [illegible] feet long [illegible] at Washington. It will be in three stories, the first having [illegible] the second five, and the third [illegible] It will have various devices and [illegible] of the revolutionary war.

The report which reached here of the accident was to the effect that a lady and gentleman passenger on the train bound for Walla Walla [illegible] their heads [illegible] and these passengers were [illegible] of the train probably to [illegible] speed. [illegible] were instantly killed. Their names [illegible] no further particulars [illegible] The report added that the bodies were taken on to Walla Walla.

A brakesman named James Walsh, known as "Chicago," and a lady passenger named Miss Minnie Wells, both had their heads [illegible] the train [illegible] struck [illegible] water pipe [illegible] which stood just at the side of the track. THE NEW RACE TRACK.

On P. J. Martin's City View Farm. Fastest Course on the Coast. Arrangements for Water, Etc.

[illegible] P. J. Martin's City View [illegible] was inspected by a number of [illegible] principally trainers of the Northwest. [illegible] conditions that it would be the finest course on the coast are verified. The track is slightly, very slightly, undulating. The first quarter has a small decline, the second an almost inappreciable rise, the back stretch is level. The homestretch is level [illegible] a most exacting taste could demand. The course is as near as can be described, has the shape of an egg, cross sectioned longitudinally in the center and constructed of the natural soil, [illegible] very elastic. It is the opinion of [illegible] Lindsey, the veteran trainer and driver, that the track is decidedly the fastest in the state.

The frame for a grand stand, thirty feet wide and 100 feet long is up and will be finished in a few days. Plans have been completed for a handsome, octagonal judges' stand, three stories high, to cost $200. The lower room will be used for weighing, the second for reporters, and the third for judges. Work on the stables has commenced, and accommodations for thirty horses will be ready a week before needed for the races. Arrangements for water are complete. It is conducted from a spring through iron pipes a distance of 1200 feet, and runs into a tank of 12,000 gallons' capacity. From this tank, water will be conducted to the stables through pipes.

The track is accessible by the Milwaukie road, and an approach made through a short lane between borders of young elms. The best means, however, of reaching the grounds is by the river, to which a road has been built from the track. The distance from the steamboat landing, three miles above Morrison street, to the grand stand is about 700 feet. Eight horses are now in training at the track. Letters have been received from a number of horsemen throughout the state, expressing the intention of entering horses for next month's races, and present indications point to a successful inaugural season.

WHITSUNDAY SERVICES

At Trinity Episcopal Church Yesterday—Addresses by Various Divines.

The closing religious services of the Protestant Episcopal convocation were held in [illegible] yesterday. Large congregations were present at all the services. There were present at the morning service the bishops of [illegible] Washington territory and the Rev. Messrs. [illegible], Daly, McEwen, [illegible], John W. Sellwood, [illegible] At the close of morning prayer Bishop Paddock preached an eloquent sermon appropriate to the day, Whitsunday. [illegible]

[illegible] Before the Lord. Let us in the privacy of our closets this day, before we assemble in the house of God [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the Holy Spirit.

At the close of the sermon the holy communion was administered to a larger number of the faithful than, perhaps, ever before in that church. At half-past three in the afternoon there was a very large and enthusiastic gathering of the children of the Sunday schools of Trinity church, St. Stephen's chapel and St. Matthew's chapel in this city, and of St. David's church in East Portland. The children came from their respective schools as a body, headed with a banner. They made a very pleasant appearance on the street, and marched into the church singing the processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers." There was a short service after which spirited and instructive addresses were delivered to the children by Bishop Morris, Rev. Messrs. Plummer, John W. Sellwood and Bishop Paddock. We wish that we had time and space to speak of these addresses in particular, suffice it to say, however, that they were interesting, as was manifested by the undivided attention given to them by the children.

In the evening, there was a missionary meeting, at which addresses were delivered full of interest and [illegible] by the Rev. Messrs. Hitchcock, Smith and Bishop Paddock. The Bishop's address was one of great eloquence, and set forth the true missionary spirit [illegible] The church in Washington territory is to be congratulated on having secured a man so earnest and capable for the great work laid upon him.

MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1881.

[illegible]

"Kind traveler, do not pass me by,
And thus a poor old dog forsake;
Just stay a moment on your way,
And hear my woe, for pity's sake!

"My name is Rover; yonder house
Was once my home for many a year;
My master loved me; every hand
Caressed young Rover, far and near.

"The children rode upon my back,
And I could hear my praises sung;
With joy I licked their pretty feet,
As round my shaggy sides they clung.

"I watched them while they played or slept,
And gave them all I had to give;
My strength was theirs from morn till night,
For only them I cared to live.

"Now I am old, and blind and lame,
They've turned me out of my abode;
Without a shelter for my head,
Without a scrap of bread or food.

"This morning I can hardly crawl,
While shivering in the snow and hail;
My teeth are dropping one by one,
I scarce have strength to wag my tail.

"I'm palsied grown with mortal pains,
My withered limbs are useless now;
My sight is almost gone, you see,
And I can hardly make my bow.

"Perhaps you'll lead me to a shed
Where I may find some friendly straw
On which to lay my aching limbs,
And rest my helpless, broken jaw.

"Stranger, excuse this story long,
And pardon, pray, my last appeal.
You've owned a dog yourself, perhaps,
And learned that dogs, like men, can feel."

Yes, poor old Rover, come with me,
Food, with warm shelter, I'll supply;
And heaven forgive the cruel souls
Who drove you forth to starve and die!
—Harper's Young People.

DETECTIVES AT WEDDINGS.

Gentlemen in Faultless Attire who Loiter near the Presents.

[From the New York Sun.]

There are in New York a hundred or more weddings in the course of a year, where there is a crush of guests in full dress, where ladies who have passed their youth feel it allowable to wear a wealth of diamonds, and where the displays of presents surpass the show-cases of fashionable jewellers. These weddings, and other social gatherings of the same class of persons, are a very paradise of thieves and pickpockets, when, as occasionally happens, they can gain admission in the guise of a guest. This, as will be imagined, few professionals can do without the risk of being bowed to the door by the host as strangers in unwarranted dress coats, yet many simple and shrewd devices are used to maintain a footing once obtained in such assemblages. Efforts are made to scrape acquaintanceships. References are boldly made to some previous social assemblage. The thief must have special gifts and a special training.

Yet it is not professional thieves that those who get up fashionable entertainments chiefly fear. The most dangerous class, because the most numerous, are included among the invited guests, and are called, when detected, kleptomaniacs.

For almost every large and fashionable wedding there is a request made upon Inspector Byrnes, in charge of the detective bureau at the police central office, for an officer to watch the array of presents, and in general to protect the house and its guests from loss by theft. Among the central office detectives on whom this duty frequently falls is George W. Lanther. He is a young man of good address and appearance, who wears a fine diamond in his shirt front, and whose clothes fit him. His fellow detectives say that when he is arrayed in a Prince Albert coat, with silk facings, for an afternoon wedding, there is nothing left to be asked for by the most critical observer, but when he appears attired in full costume for an evening wedding or reception, language fails. Mr. Lanther was sought out yesterday. He said his duties were simple, and, for the most part, agreeable.

"The first thing I do," he said, "when I go to a reception is to take a look through the house, up and down stairs, in order to acquaint myself with the different rooms as well as with the disposition of valuable articles. For this reason I usually go a short time before the guests are expected. While the guests are arriving I usually stand in the hall to watch them as they enter. I am very apt to know a professional thief by his face. Where the presents are very numerous and valuable, I generally have the smaller ones, such as diamonds and other jewelry which a person could pocket and carry away readily, put on a table by themselves. Then I take a seat near them. I am supposed by the most of those who see me to be a guest. If anybody guesses otherwise, I am contented they should have their opinion. I inform myself about the presents, and when guests come up to inspect them, they naturally fall to talking to express their admiration. I am able to tell them about the presents. One guest, therefore, sees me talking with another, and he is not likely to remark that I remain in one part of the room the afternoon or evening. If I sat still and said nothing, I would soon become an object of notice.

"I have never," continued Mr. Lanther, "been compelled to make an arrest at receptions, although I have attended many dozens of them, nor have I ever seen an attempt to steal a valuable present. If a professional thief gets into an assembly by chance, he probably knows what my presence means, and if any body else has any designs on the presents, he discovers after a time that they are never left alone.

"I have seen many very brilliant arrays of presents: large diamonds and rubies of very great value, chests of silverware, pyramids of the finest cut-glass decanters, antique cups, and costly fans. I never saw a lady in such an assembly whose jewelry was guarded by a detective; but I have seen some of middle age and older, various parts of whose dresses were decorated with great clusters of diamonds. To these small weddings and receptions come the same set over and over again, and a person who attends them soon learns to know their faces and names.

"As to personal treatment, the guests of the assemblies I have attended have always addressed me with courtesy, and do not see how they could have done otherwise, even when they knew my business, for I never sought acquaintanceship, while I have always been willing to talk on any subject I knew anything about, and I never ask questions about matters that don't concern me."

Stories are told by detectives of ladies, whose families are of the highest respectability, whom they have pointed out to the givers of entertainments as having stolen valuable presents. In several cases related to the reporter, the valuables were recovered under threats of arrest, and scandals resulted. In others, the host was unwilling to make accusations, preferring to avoid the scandal that would follow an exposure. In one case a lady fainted when she was accused. She would not confess, and she was not searched, but it was afterward said diamond ring was returned by her father, an action which the detective who told the story criticised as inexcusably simple on the father's part if he had in view merely the reputation of his daughter. It is said that several series of thefts have been committed by young men so fascinated with society life that they lived beyond their means, and at last were driven, by what appeared to them necessity, to steal.

Two or three years ago a young man of this class purloined several watches and other valuable articles from the house of Chief-Justice George Shea of the marine court, John D. Townsend and others, at a series of entertainments running nearly through the season. A warrant was issued for him, but he escaped arrest. He had formerly moved in good society of right, but he had introduced himself at the first of this series of entertainments by sheer impudence. He committed so many thefts that at last he was watched, but even then he escaped with his last booty without being detected and it was said that the evidence against him was largely inferential. His flight, however, confirmed it. This case was exposed at the time.

Only a few weeks ago a polite gentleman, who appeared in the guise of a guest at a fashionable entertainment, succeeded in making off with a valuable assortment of overcoats.

CUSTER'S FIGHT.

Sitting Bull's Story of the Battle Fought During a Terrific Thunderstorm.

A special correspondent of the Toronto Globe writes from Wood Mountain, N. W. T., April [illegible] 1881: In a recent interview with Major Crozier, Sitting Bull said: During the summer previous to the one in which Custer attacked us he sent a letter to me telling me [illegible] [illegible] I had no want to fight, but only to [illegible]. I told him at the same time that if he wanted to fight [illegible] and fight those Indians who wanted to fight him. Custer then sent me word again—this was in the winter—[illegible] "You will not take my former offer; now I am going to fight you this winter." [illegible] sent word back and said just what I had said before, that I did not want to fight, and only wanted to be let alone, and that my camp was the only one that had not fought [illegible] been there and come back if he still wanted to fight me, that I would fight then. Custer sent back word and said, "I will fight you in eight days."

I then saw that it was no use, that I would have to fight, so I sent him word back, "All right; get all your men mounted, and I will get all my men mounted; we will have a fight; the Great Spirit will look on, and the side that is in the wrong will be defeated."

I began to get ready and sent twenty young men to watch for the soldiers. Five soon came back with word that Custer was coming. The other fifteen stopped to watch his movements. When Custer was quite close ten young men came in. When he had advanced still closer two more of them came in, leaving three still to watch the troops. We had got up a medicine dance for war in the camp, and just as it was coming to an end two of the young men who had stopped out came in with word that Custer and the troops were very close and would be upon the camp in the morning. That night we all got ready for the battle. My young men all buckled on their ammunition belts as I we were busy putting strong sticks into the [illegible] sticks. Early at sunrise two young men, who had been out a short way on the plain, came to me and told me that from a top of a high butte they had seen the troops advancing in two divisions. I then had all the horses driven into the camp and corraled between the lodges. About noon the troops came up and at once rushed upon the camp. They charged in two separate divisions, one at the upper end while the other division charged about the middle of the camp. The latter division struck the camp in the center of the [illegible] lodges of the Uncpapas, Sioux, and close to the door of my own lodge. At the time that the troops charged I was making medicine for the Great Spirit to help us and fight upon our side and as I heard the noise and knew what it was, I came out. When I had got to the outside of my lodge I noticed that this division had stopped suddenly close to the outer side of the Uncpapas camp, and then they sounded a bugle and the troops fired into the camp. Here Sitting Bull made a peculiar noise with his mouth and clapped his hands together to imitate the firing of the soldiers.

I at once set my wife upon my best horse, put my war bonnet on her head, and told her to run away with the rest of the women. She did so, but in her hurry forgot to take the baby, a girl. After she had gone a little way she thought of the child and came back for it. I gave the child to her and she went off again.

I now put a flag upon a lodge pole, and lifting it as high as I could I shouted out as loud as I could to my own men, "I am Sitting Bull; follow me!" I then rushed, at the head of them up to the place where I thought Custer was, and just as we got close up to the troops they fired again. (Here Bull again imitated for some length of time the firing of the troops.) When I saw that the soldiers fired from their saddles and did but little damage to us, I ordered all my men to rush through their ranks and break them, which they did, but failed to break the ranks, although we suffered as little damage as before. I then shouted to them to try again, and, putting myself at the head of my men, we went at them again. This time, although the soldiers were keeping up a rapid firing (from their horses), we knocked away a whole corner and killed a great many. [illegible] I had only one man killed. After this we charged the same way several times, and kept driving them back for about half a mile, killing them very fast. After forcing them back there only remained five soldiers of this division and the interpreter alive, and I told my men to let them live. Then the interpreter (the man that the Indians called "The White,") shouted out in Sioux and said, "Custer is not in this division, he is in the other." I then ordered all my men to come on and attack the other division. They did so, and I followed them. The soldiers of this division fired upon us as soon as we got within range, but did as little harm. When we had got quite close, and we were just going to charge them, a great storm broke right over us, the lightning was fearful, and struck a lot of the soldiers and horses, killing them instantly. I then called out to my men to charge the troops, and shouted out: "The Great Spirit is on our side; look how he is striking the soldiers down!" My men saw this, and they all rushed upon the troops, who were mixed up a good deal. About forty of the soldiers had been dismounted by the frightened, falling and frightening their horses, and these men were soon trampled to death. It was just at this time that we charged them, and we easily knocked them off their horses, and then killed them with our "coup sticks."

In this way we killed all this division, with the exception of a few who tried to get away but were killed by the Sioux before they could get very far. All through the battle the soldiers fired very wild and only killed to my five Sioux. I did not recognize Custer in the fight, but only thought I did, but I would not be certain about it. I believe Custer was killed in the first attack, as we found his body or what all the Indians thought was Custer's body, about the place that it was made. I do not think there is any truth in the report that he shot himself. I saw two soldiers shoot themselves. The Sioux were following them and in a few moments would have caught them, but they shot themselves with their pistols in the head. The body which all the Indians said was Custer's had its hair cut short. There were 709 Americans killed. We counted them by putting a stick upon each body and then taking the sticks up again and counting them. We counted 707 carbines. Two might have fallen into the creek.

When Bull had concluded the foregoing account of the battle he turned to Maj. Crozier and said: "There! I have fought the battle all over again to you, and this I have never done since the time I fought it out in earnest with Gen. Custer."

THE NEW YORK FREIGHT MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The clipper freight market remains much the same as has been noted from time to time, and there is not much doing as a general thing, although there is more or less freight offered by certain shippers who steadily refuse to make contracts with the railroads. The Farragut is the most advanced ship on berth and will sail Monday. The Abner I. Benyon will finish about the 15th inst. Tonnage is still scarce with a prospect of its being more so. The latest charters are the C. S. Hulburt, Reporter and bark Vesuvius with railroad iron for Portland and the Lamol, a vessel from Philadelphia.

Freights at Boston are not very active, yet something is doing. The Brown Brothers is in berth and has taken quite a lot of freight that had accumulated for her.

Railroad freights at Boston have been more active. Shipments include 50 cases canned fish, 150 tons candles, also large quantities of boots and shoes.

Freights at Philadelphia are rather dull and the Sambria is yet in berth.

Chicago Markets.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The sales of July options during the week were as follows: Wheat, $1 05@1 13⅞; corn, 42⅝@43⅞c; oats, 35@36c; pork, $15 50@16 50; lard, $10 52½@10 7⅛.

Closing cash prices: Wheat, $1 06@1 06½; corn, 42@4[illegible]; oats, 37½c; Rye, $1 10; barley, 95c; pork, $16[illegible]; lard, $10 60@10[illegible].

Closing July prices: Wheat, $1 1[illegible]; corn, 4[illegible]; oats, 35⅛@35⅞c; pork, $16 15@16 17½; lard, $10 70.

Receipts for the week: Flour 75,000 bbls; wheat 450,000 bushels, corn 2,263,000 bushels, oats 1,30[illegible] bushels. Shipments: Flour 71,391, wheat [illegible], corn 1,939,000, oats 641,000.

Receipts same time last year: Flour 19,030, wheat 476,046, corn 1,066,000, oats 650,000. Shipments: Flour 42,000, wheat 98 100, corn 2,655,000, oats 652,[illegible].

The receipts aggregate about 4,650,000 bushels and shipments 1,159,000 bushels less. The receipts were nearly 500,000 bushels greater than last year and the shipments 1,[illegible] less. These facts account, in some degree for the heavy decline of today's wheat.

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure-all," it is a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, Impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.
